About the Show

Robin Hood

Adapted for Stage by John Maclay and Joe Foust

Directed by Sam Muñoz

As legend has it, Robin Hood was a master archer. Living in the forest, he and his band of “Merry Men” are able to save the good guys with a little help from the bad guys. This old English folklore comes to life for children in a beautiful, contemporary way in the Playhouse Jr. production of Robin Hood.

Theatre Etiquette

Just like you need to be respectful and quiet in school during class, you need to act the same way during a stage performance. All of the people involved in the production, both cast and crew, work very hard to be sure they give a great performance. It is the job of the audience members to help the performers give their best performance possible.

Follow the rules below to ensure you and everyone else enjoys the show!

- Arrive to the theatre on time
- Visit the restroom before the performance begins and at intermission
- Turn your cellphone off
- Pay attention to any special announcements
- Don't talk during the performance
- Do not take pictures
- No eating or drinking in the theatre
- Don't put your feet on the seats or kick the seat in front of you
- Remain in your seat during the performance
